

This photo shows the street outside my apartment near OCAD. I chose it because it represents my daily experience here and the small moments of calm I notice, even though I don't go out much.